Learning Standard 1: KNOW GOD

Explains from Scripture what corporate worship is for, and evaluates worship practice against that understanding.

Gr.	Emerging/Emerging+	Developing/Developing+	Proficient/Proficient+	Extending/Extending+
11	States biblical teaching about worship, minimally describing what shapes it. Describes a worship service observed, suggesting connections to biblical teaching that are asserted rather than supported.	Describes what corporate worship is for, outlining its biblical foundations. Explains a worship service observed in general terms, applying biblical teaching that would fit any service.	Explains from Scripture what corporate worship is for, identifying the biblical foundations that shape it. Evaluates a worship service observed against that understanding, explaining what its choices assume about God and about the congregation.	Justifies an interpretation of what corporate worship is for, examining the assumptions behind it. Critiques a worship service observed, comparing and contrasting two faithful traditions without collapsing one into the other.
12	Describes a position on a contested question in worship, outlining reasons that rest on preference. Explains a worship service observed against biblical teaching in general terms.	Explains a position on a contested question in worship, justifying it against a limited objection. Evaluates a worship service observed, describing what its choices assume about God and about the congregation.	Formulates and justifies a position on a contested question in worship, evaluating the strongest objection to it and identifying what that objection gets right. Critiques a worship service observed, including at an unfamiliar congregation, evaluating its choices against biblical teaching.	Judiciously justifies a position on a contested question, synthesizing evidence from Scripture and from the church's traditions. Critiques two faithful traditions judiciously, examining what each protects and what each risks.

Learning Standard 2: LEAD

Designs a service in which every element carries a justified reason, and organizes a team to deliver it.

Gr.	Emerging/Emerging+	Developing/Developing+	Proficient/Proficient+	Extending/Extending+
11	Outlines a service plan by selecting elements others have chosen. Applies direction given, relying on a teacher or a more experienced student to hold the plan together.	Constructs a service plan, describing reasons for its elements that restate the theme. Applies their own role reliably and on time, following direction given.	Designs a service plan in which every element — songs, Scripture, prayer, spoken transitions — carries a justified reason connected to the theme, and organizes the order so that it develops rather than fills time. Justifies each song selected by explaining what it says, whether it is true, and whether this congregation can sing it.	Designs a service plan that predicts the congregation's experience — where attention will flag, where a transition will confuse, what a guest will not understand — and develops it before the fact. Prioritizes among competing good choices, justifying what was set aside.
12	Constructs a service plan and applies their own role within it, while the team looks to a teacher or another student for direction. Outlines role assignments after the plan is already set.	Designs a service plan and organizes the team once it is set, communicating changes late enough to cost rehearsal time. Describes what each role requires, but delegates only work they would rather not do.	Designs a service plan in which every element carries a justified reason, and organizes the team to deliver it — selecting roles, communicating changes early enough to be useful, and delegating work they could have done themselves. Justifies the whole service rather than their own slot in it, evaluating it against the theme it was built on.	Designs and documents a plan that survives their absence: another student can pick it up mid-week and deliver it. Prioritizes among competing good choices, judiciously justifying what was set aside and why.

Learning Standard 3: CRAFT

Determines what they and their team can carry, and verifies that the congregation can take part. This standard assesses decisions about capability, not the quality of a student's singing, playing or mixing.

Gr.	Emerging/Emerging+	Developing/Developing+	Proficient/Proficient+	Extending/Extending+
11	Applies a role once another student or a teacher has set it up, preparing during rehearsal rather than before it. Identifies problems only after they are pointed out.	Selects and prepares their own part, but communicates changes to the team late. Identifies a problem during the service and applies a solution once told.	Determines what they and the team can carry — keys, tempos, arrangements, cues, signal chain — selecting settings so that execution serves the congregation's singing rather than drawing attention to itself. Verifies that charts, keys and cues are settled and distributed before rehearsal. When something goes wrong, identifies what is happening and adjusts.	Investigates a problem the team had not noticed, determines its cause, and constructs a solution that leaves the team more capable next time, not only this time. Predicts where the congregation will struggle to take part, and adjusts before the fact.
12	Determines what they can carry themselves and retains the roles they are strongest in. Applies a solution when a less experienced student struggles by stepping in and taking the role.	Selects a role to hand to a less experienced student and outlines what it requires, but takes it back when it wobbles. Verifies their own part; leaves the other student to verify theirs unaided.	Selects a role they are strong in, prepares another student to hold it, and stays off it during the service — determining that a less polished result is worth a more capable team. Verifies that their own remaining role is set, prepared, and within what the team can carry.	Investigates a problem the team had not noticed, determines its cause, and constructs a solution that leaves the team able to prevent it without them. Develops another student to the point where they can determine these settings themselves.

Learning Standard 4: CREATE

Creates devotions, arrangements and songs that state something true about God, demonstrating biblical literacy, and justifies the choices that make them say it.

Gr.	Emerging/Emerging+	Developing/Developing+	Proficient/Proficient+	Extending/Extending+
11	Creates a devotion or arrangement that restates a theme, outlining its content without stating what it claims. Identifies the biblical text(s) behind it. Comments on their own choices only in terms of preference.	Creates a devotion or arrangement that is complete and competent, describing content that is borrowed rather than worked out. Describes the content of the biblical text(s). Explains some of the choices made, in general terms.	Creates a devotion, arrangement or song that states something true about God clearly enough that a listener could summarize it afterward. Explains the biblical text(s) in context. Justifies the choices that made it say that rather than something else.	Creates a devotion, arrangement or song in which the form itself carries the meaning — the arrangement, structure or placement does theological work the words alone would not. Evaluates how faithfully it uses the text(s). Evaluates why that form was chosen, and what a different form would have claimed.
12	Creates draft lyrics and melody for an original song, outlining familiar phrases rather than stating a particular claim. Describes the content of the biblical text(s). Applies feedback selectively, and comments on the draft by defending it.	Creates a complete and singable original song, describing theological content that is borrowed. Explains the biblical text(s) in context. Explains the draft when given feedback, but develops it only where the change is small.	Creates and records an original song — lyrics, melody, structure, recording — justifying what it claims about God and who it is for. Justifies its reading of the text(s) in context. Develops the song in response to collaborative feedback rather than defending the first draft.	Creates an original song in which the form carries the meaning: structure, melodic shape, or the placement of its turn does theological work the words alone would not. Critiques its use of the text(s). Evaluates its singability for a congregation, not only its performability, and justifies the revisions judiciously.

Learning Standard 5: SERVE

Demonstrates love of neighbour by doing the work that makes other people's work possible, and identifies who it served.

Gr.	Emerging/Emerging+	Developing/Developing+	Proficient/Proficient+	Extending/Extending+
11	Applies effort to service when asked and when it is visible, leaving setup, teardown and unrecognized work to others. Identifies what they did, but not who it was for.	Demonstrates service reliably within their own team and role, identifying needs once they are pointed out. Applies feedback given when it is repeated.	Demonstrates service by doing the work that makes other people's work possible — including the parts nobody sees or credits — and identifies who benefited and how. Applies feedback given rather than only receiving it.	Identifies a need outside their own team or role and meets it without being asked or thanked. Evaluates whether it left the other person better able to act.
12	Demonstrates service when asked. Comments on a peer's work with encouragement that carries no content.	Demonstrates service within their own team, doing work that makes others' work possible. Critiques a peer's work honestly, but late, or about the person rather than the decision.	Demonstrates service by doing the work that makes other people's work possible — including the parts nobody sees or credits — and identifies who benefited and how. Critiques a peer's work usefully: specific, about a decision rather than a person, and offered in time to act on before their next chapel.	Identifies a need outside their own team or role and meets it without being asked or thanked. Develops the person they helped, so that they can hold it themselves.

WORSHIP LEADERSHIP Rubrics 11–12

Rubric refinement draft for staff review. Level descriptors use command terms from the RCS Command Term list (adopted from the IBO), RCS SC Staff Handbook pp. 21–23.

NOTES ON USE

The Proficient column is the standard.

Each level names a different performance, marked by a different command term — State, Describe, Explain, Evaluate, Justify, Critique — rather than a larger quantity of the same one. Grade 12 sits one rung further along the same ladder than Grade 11, so a Grade 12 student producing solid Grade 11 work is Developing, by design.

The plus.

The descriptor names the performance; the plus means the student has shown it consistently, across more than one chapel or context. Each student leads six or seven chapels a year, which is what makes this judgeable rather than impressionistic.

CRAFT does not assess musical ability.

It assesses decisions about capability — the student's own and their team's — so that the congregation can take part. A student with a narrow musical range who determines settings accordingly, verifies their preparation and leads clearly meets this standard fully. A highly skilled student who over-reaches, under-prepares, or leaves the team guessing does not. Biblical warrant: Exodus 31:1–6 and 35:30–35; 1 Chronicles 25:1, 7; 1 Corinthians 14:12.

Not assessed anywhere on this rubric.

Vocal or instrumental quality, tone, blend or tightness. And the student's own prayer life, journalling or personal worship — those practices are assigned, expected and discussed in debrief, but they are not marked. Evidence that the course forms students belongs at the program level, not on a report card.

EVIDENCE FOR EACH STANDARD

KNOW GOD Seminar written responses; theology-desk briefs; written evaluations of services observed, including at an unfamiliar congregation; unit tests; the philosophy-of-worship paper.

LEAD The service plan and its stated reasons; the song list with rationale; drafted transitions and Scripture selections; role assignments and how they were communicated; the chapel observation record.

CRAFT Chapel observation records; rehearsal observation; the state of charts, keys and cues at handover; who held which role and who prepared them.

CREATE Grade 11 — devotions led for the chapel team or the wider school; arrangements prepared and shared (mashups, acoustic versions, reimagined arrangements) with the account of their choices. Grade 12 — the original song: drafts, lyrics, recording and mastering, the written account of what it claims and who it is for, and evidence of revision on feedback.

SERVE Chapel observation records; setup, teardown and gaps covered; feedback given to peers and what the peer did with it; debrief notes; what the student did that nobody would have noticed.

Draft for staff review. Level descriptors are a starting point for calibration, not a finished instrument — the teachers of record should work through them together in PRISM before use. Weighting, the reporting-scale conversion, the biblical warrant for CRAFT, and any change to the approved BAA course framework require RCS sign-off. The English 9–12 rubric was used as the format exemplar; note that its own CREATE standard carries word-for-word identical Grade 11 and Grade 12 rows, so the vertical-differentiation question is not unique to this course.
